Friday was Arbor and Bird Day, and the various schools observed the occasion by the cleaning up of their school grounds, planting of trees, and by giving appropriate programs. The observance of this day seems quite popular with the children, and they enter into the spirit of the thing with a vim that is encouraging to those interested in such matters. The teachings inculcated into the minds of the little ones should certainly bear fruit in after years and should prove good lessons for them.

John Graithier, the cooper, is busy most of the time these days engaged in manufacturing beer kegs for the Grand Rapids Brewing Co., of which he has turned out a large number. He is assisted in the work by Herman Finop, who is also a first class workman, and the work they turn out is equal to that done anywhere. The making of a beer keg is quite a piece of work as it is probably as solid a piece of cooper work as is used for any purpose, and the laying on the different sized kegs by the brewery amounts to considerable money.

Several inches of snow fell on Monday night, and the old settler who had predicted that it would be necessary to have a snowstorm before the weather could warm up is now in his glory. To wake up on the 8th of May and find the ground covered with snow is a trifle unusual even for Wisconsin.

R. W. Crawford of Stevens Point, representing the Wisconsin Telephone Company, was in the city on Tuesday interviewing some of the stockholders of the local telephone company with a view of effecting a consolidation between the Wisconsin company and the Wood County Telephone Co. The proposed connection between the two companies would give all of the subscribers of the local Co. long distance connections to all parts of the country over the lines of the American Bell company, but in order to do this the local company would have to make some concessions that are objectionable to the stockholders.

George B. McMillan received a number of photographs of the country down around the battlefield of Shiloh, where he was in attendance at the dedication of the Shiloh monument last month. One of the photos he values most highly is a picture of the tree behind which he stood some forty years ago while his company was being fired upon by the rebels. While there have been many changes in that part of the country during the past forty years, still it was possible for him to pick out the tree where he had stood, owing to the fact that it was near the road, and at that time was a good sized white oak tree.

AMONG CRANBERRY MEN.

EDITED BY W. H. FITCH.

Cranberry Spraying Experiments in 1905.

In Farmers' Bulletin No. 221 a brief account was given of cranberry diseases and also the results of spraying experiments with Bordeaux mixture.

The results in 1905 were not entirely satisfactory. This was due, however, to the inefficiency of Bordeaux mixture, but to circumstances which prevented the application of Bordeaux mixture at proper intervals.

The results obtained in 1905 showed an average of 2.7 per cent of rotten berries on the sprayed plots, as compared with an average of 67.8 per cent on the unsprayed check plots.

Considering the unsatisfactory manner in which the Bordeaux mixture was applied, the prediction was ventured that it would be possible with more thorough treatment to reduce the loss from 10 to 15 per cent.

The results obtained in 1905 have more than justified this prediction.

The experiments were conducted on what is known as the Bunker Hill bog at Whitewater, N. J., which is in charge of Mr. James D. Hoffman, the same plots being used as in 1904, with the addition of a small area not heretofore sprayed.

This bog was selected because the fruit has in former years been almost entirely destroyed by disease. The water was drained from the bog May 10-12. It is the usual practice of cranberry growers to flood the bog for twenty-four hours in order to destroy insects.

In these experiments it was planned to spray part of the experimental plots before this second flooding and part immediately afterwards, in order to determine the necessity of spraying before the second flooding. The water supply of the bog was, however, insufficient to flood it at the usual time, and it was not done.

The spraying apparatus used was a barrel and pump fitted with two lengths of half-inch hose, each length provided with an extension rod and two Vermeer nozzles. The apparatus was driven about the bog in a low loaded spring wagon.

The Bordeaux mixture used consisted of 6 pounds of copper sulphate (blue stone) and 6 pounds of fresh lime slaked in 50 gallons of water, to which was added 4-5 pounds of commercial resin-lime soap. The addition of this soap has been found to be indispensable, as Bordeaux mixture will not spread over and adhere satisfactorily to the glossy surface of the cranberry leaves and fruit without it. Henceforth this soap has been made as it was not an altogether pleasant operation. Now that the soap is being manufactured and placed on the market at about 3 cents per pound, it is cheaper and much more convenient to purchase it than to make it.

Besides our purely experimental plots, several acres upon another bog known as "Long Swamp," were sprayed by Mr. Hoffman. One portion was sprayed five times on the following dates: June 26, July 18-21, August 2-4, and August 18-19. One part was sprayed only four times. The first plot, which was also sprayed in 1904, was estimated to have from 80 to 100 per cent of the fruit sound on September 15. On the area sprayed only in 1905 it was estimated that from 70 to 80 per cent of the fruit was sound.

On the plot which only received the first four applications the fruit showed somewhat more rot than on the other plots at picking time. The fruit on these plots has in former years been almost entirely destroyed by rot.

The difference in the appearance of the fruit on the sprayed and unsprayed plots was very marked by the middle of July. On the unsprayed plots a large proportion of the fruit was blasted, owing to the early attack of the cranberry blight (Guignardia).

On the sprayed plots but little blasted fruit was to be seen. In many cases at least one-half of the fruit is destroyed by blight, the young fruit being attacked by the fungus at about the time the blossoms begin to fall. In order to prevent this, one of the applications of Bordeaux mixture should be made immediately after the vines have reached their maximum flowering stage, as a delay of a week at this time may make a difference of from 25 to 50 per cent in the amount of fruit destroyed by blight.

A very striking illustration of this fact was observed upon another bog where one plot had been sprayed on July 1 and another adjoining was not sprayed until July 1. On the plot sprayed on July 1, when the vines had just reached their maximum flowering condition, but very little blasted fruit could be found, whereas on the plot which had been sprayed on July 1, at least one-half of the fruit had been blasted. This and other observations indicate the exceedingly great importance of prompt and thorough early applications of the fungicide. In case the bog to be sprayed is flooded for insects early in June, the first application of Bordeaux mixture should be made within a day or two after the water is removed, the second application just as the plants begin flowering, and the third just after the majority of the blossoms have appeared, which in ordinary seasons will be about the first of July.

While the damage in the east by insects has been of serious consequence, Wisconsin marshes, as a rule, have not suffered so severely, but still, more or less damage was reported last year, and everything of a remedial nature is important and worthy of consideration. It is along these lines that expert experimental work is valuable and of utility to those concerned in the industry.

An Advertisement.

In last week's issue was published a communication from Ex. Pres. A. C. Bennett, commenting upon an article which had previously appeared in these columns entitled, "A Roseate View."

The points made are regarded as timely and important, especially in view of phenomenally high jobbing rates which have prevailed the past season—albeit growers as a rule, did not participate in the usual profit—and which might mislead the uninformed.

The article referred to was taken from the American Cultivator, an old and leading journal in the east, and was given for the benefit of growers that they might know how their avocation was looked upon from the outside and be goaded and goaded accordingly.

As to the progressive methods of marketing, it is urged that the nearer the approach to the standards of excellence adopted by the association—the quality, full quantity and fair price, the greater the benefit along the lines of community of interest for producer, middleman and consumer.

Personal.

Mr. O. E. Malde, in charge of cranberry investigations, is now located at the Experimental station and will make a visit to the various marshes for the purpose of gathering data as to current conditions. Under the supervision and direction of the College of Agriculture of the state university at the hand of Dean Henry and Prof. Whitson, the cranberry industry of Wisconsin will receive the attention its importance demands, and forthcoming reports will be awaited with interest.

Typhoid Germs Short Lived.

Results of a series of interesting investigations which have been carried on in the hygienic laboratory at the University of Wisconsin, showing that the vitality of the germs causing typhoid fever is not very great, when these germs find their way either into pure water or into sewage infected water. A long series of experiments have been carried on with a view to determining the exact length of time in which the bacillus typhosus survives when placed in ordinary lake water, and similar investigation has been made of their longevity in polluted waters. As a result it has been shown that in flowing water taken from Lake Mendota, the organisms live from eight to ten days, when in water polluted by sewage they survive but five days. This leads to the conclusion that the typhus bacillus is killed off by the presence of the other organisms in the sewage infected water. The tests were made by Prof. H. J. Russell and Dr. C. A. Fuller of the department of bacteriology of the University of Wisconsin.

In carrying on these experiments in the laboratory, effort was made to approximate as closely as possible the conditions that exist in nature. The water containing the waters infected with the typhoid bacillus were placed in large glass receptacles three which were allowed to flow continuously a stream of water or sewage. Two of this series of experiments were carried on in water, one in spring and one in summer, so that the effect of the varying temperature of water might be tested. Every precaution was taken to make the experiments as accurate as possible.

The tests in normal water taken from Lake Mendota show a striking agreement as to the length of time that the typhoid organism survives under these conditions. Altho in a number of experiments there was a considerable variation as to the temperature of the water and of the number of the organisms employed, the life of the typhoid germs ranged from eight to ten days. While the limit of the complete destruction was from eight to ten days by far the greater portion of the organisms disappeared before the ending of a week. It was often only a few seemingly more persistent individual germs that persisted for an appreciably longer time than the average.

Having determined the relation of the typhoid organism to such natural surface waters as those of Lake Mendota, the university bacteriologists directed their attention to the length of life of these organisms when exposed to the influence of liquids filled with germ life and other products. The result of the experiments indicates that the typhoid organism is unable to retain its vitality as long when immersed in sewage as it does when in contact with lake water. When the bacillus typhosus was exposed directly to the action of sewage bacteria it survived from three to five days, less than half the time that it could live in pure water. The other experiments show that the cause of the death of the typhoid bacillus was the direct action of the other bacteria present in the sewage rather than the products of the sewage bacteria. This investigation seems to warrant the definite conclusion that the longevity of the typhoid germs in water is materially affected by the presence in the water of other bacteria.

The Kind of Air They Were Breathing.

A CROWDED trolley car slowly wound its way from the city of Newark toward New York.

A bearded man who looked like Citizen Fixit clutched a strap with one hand and gesticulated with the other. He was addressing the crowd collectively.

"Not a ventilator open," he shouted. "not a window, not a door. Here we are, penned in like a lot of animals. We are longing for a breath of fresh air. But what does the company care?"

A tall man with a derby hat dodged instinctively to avoid the waving arm.

"We got aboard; we pay our fare," declared he of the bald head, "and the doors are shut, the windows are shut, the ventilators are shut. We cannot move, we are stifled."

"Has anybody got aboard?" suggested the tall man. "Fixit" withdrew him with a glance and then shouted excitedly:

"What kind of air is this we are breathing now? I ask you, what kind of air is this we are breathing now?"

The tall man in the derby shouldered his way toward the back of the car.

"For air," he replied, with a grin. Success Magazine.

Mrs. Ackert lives near a little town in the northern part of New York state, where the farmers bring butter and eggs to the country store to exchange for tea, sugar and other commodities. One day Mrs. Ackert brought some butter in pound lumps to exchange for calico. The grocer weighed the butter. "Mrs. Ackert," he said, "this butter doesn't weigh a pound."

Tuberculosis.

Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin.—In the United States every year more than 150,000 persons die from tuberculosis. These lives might be saved, for tuberculosis is a preventable and a curable disease.

To teach the precautions which should be observed to avoid the spread of tuberculosis, so that those who are well may learn how to avoid danger of infection, and those who are afflicted with it may become informed regarding the best regimen for its cure, is the object of the tuberculosis exhibit which has been held in New York, Philadelphia, Indianapolis and Chicago, and will open in this city next week.

Here are facts regarding the nature of the disease set forth under the authority of the National Society for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

Tuberculosis is a communicable disease caused by the tubercle bacillus, a minute vegetable organism. It is always contracted from another sufferer from the disease. It never comes from a cold, tho a cold may develop it and first draw attention to it. It is not hereditary. The germ or bacillus enters by the nose, mouth or an open wound. Wherever inhaled it produces little nodules called tubercles. These may grow and increase. They may soften, break open and be expelled, leaving behind a scar or a cavity, bacilli being left in the walls of the ulcer to continue the disease. As the disease develops, the germs may migrate to other parts of the body, such as the lungs, causing fever, increase in pulse-rate, chills, sweats, stomach disturbances and wasting.

The majority of people in good health are under ordinary conditions not susceptible to the disease. Anything tending to lower the vitality renders the system less likely to resist the tubercle bacillus. Among the other things which tend to lower the vitality are poor and insufficient food, overwork, alcoholism, worry, dissipation and living in damp, dark or overcrowded dwellings. Severe diseases, like typhoid fever, and repeated colds tend to make one susceptible to the assaults of the bacillus.

Here are some of the things advised by way of remedy and precaution:

The patient should always have nine hours' sleep, retiring before 10 p. m. He must sleep alone and, when possible, have a room to himself. The windows of the sleeping room should be kept open day and night, no matter what the weather. The idea is to make every inhalation one of unbreathed air. During the day the patient must spend as much time as possible out of doors. The diet should be generous, nourishing and easily digestible. The most nourishing food is milk, cream, butter, eggs, raw or rare beef and beef-steak. The more the patient consumes of these the more quickly he will build up. Alcohol (whisky, brandy, wines and beer) is usually harmful. In all cases infection of others can be prevented. If the patient is careful with his sputum he is harmless; if he is careless he is dangerous to others and also to himself.

Make Early Announcement.

In a number of counties in the state candidates for county offices are already beginning to announce their candidacy, and in this connection The Tribune wishes to say that it is prepared to publish such announcements for all parties, without regard to political color or belief, whether Democratic, Republican or Prohibitionist, and will use all alike, charging the regular advertising price, namely five cents per line each insertion. This is exclusive of cuts or pictures of candidates, for which an extra charge of 20 cents per inch each insertion will be made. After the nominations are made, next September, however, The Tribune will be regularly to the support of those who are legally nominated at the Democratic primaries.

The new primary election law, under which the next election will be held, will undoubtedly lay greater stress on this county, and the custom of favoring certain nationalities on both the Democratic and Republican tickets, on account of local support in the past, may be entirely obliterated. If this proves the case, it must be charged to the LaFollette primary law and not to the party to which the respective candidates belong. Every candidate must stand on his own candidacy, and the fellow who makes his candidacy known first, does the most hustling, spends the most money and is the best-favored, will undoubtedly succeed in carrying his party primary election. If any of you have a political bee in your bonnet, strike while the iron is hot.

Month of May Will be Warm.

The following are the weather forecasts for the month of May as predicted by the Rev. Irl R. Hicks in his "Word and Work."

"A regular storm period is in force from the 7th to the 11th, having its center on the 9th. A very low and threatening barometer will move out of the western sections by the 8th, and the weather will grow warm and cloudy, the hygrometer will indicate great humidity, and wide, violent storms of rain, wind and thunder will sweep eastward across the country from about the 8th to the 11th. We may say with assurance that barometric, except in the far north, are not to be apprehended later than the wind-up of this period, say about the 9th to the 13th.

"A reactionary storm period, centered on the 14th and 15th, will be affected by the combined influences of Mercury and Mars. It is proper to remind our readers of the fact, often before explained, that the first two or three storm periods, after entering the Mars period, indicate the general character of the storm and weather that will prevail at the storm periods (through the Mars disturbance). Normally, we should look for falling barometer, rising temperature, thick cloudiness and rain, with more or less thunder and wind about the 14th, 15th, 16th, followed by change of wind to northwesterly, rising barometer and cooler.

"The regular storm period, extending from the 19th to the 23rd, centered on the 20th. We predict that the character of storms and weather for more than a month to follow will be in a general way foreshadowed by the character of the storm and weather which prevail during the regular period, 19th to 23rd. We believe that most parts of the United States will have a series of heavy rains, wind and thunder storms for several days in succession, especially from about the 19th to the 24th. We also believe that violent and tornado storms will develop in many central to western localities at this period. In every case, however, those who consult barometer readings, and other unmistakable conditions of clouds and atmosphere, will have ample warnings as to their own localities.

"The reactionary storm period, centered on the 26th, 27th and 28th, will partake largely of the same character of disturbances as those of the period just preceding it. Indeed, the Mercury and Mars influences are apt to cause unsettled if not stormy weather from one period into the other. A decided change to anti-storm conditions at this time would bring very cold nights with frosts over northern sections. The last day of May begins a regular storm period which runs into June."

May Organize Ball Team.
 During the past few days a number of our citizens have expressed themselves as being willing to donate something toward the maintenance of a baseball team during the coming summer, and in order to discover the sentiment of the people on the subject Officer Garthie has been circulating a subscription list with a view to seeing what can be done along this line. The number who have signified their willingness to aid an institution of this sort is quite large, and it would seem, to support an amateur team for the season, with what could be taken in at the grounds.

The above was written by a gentleman who is a graduate of the university and knows what he is talking about. The announcement of hazing scrapes at the different universities has become so common that the average man pays no attention to them. If he is not a graduate of the school, or at least a former student, he just sets it down as a part of the foolishness of young fellows when they become members of an institution of learning, and that is about all he thinks or cares about it.

But it does seem as if our so-called civilization had advanced far enough so that unlawful practices of this kind could be stopped, by law, if not by the morality of the students themselves. One of the excuses given for hazing at the university was that he had made the statement that the Wisconsin men were not outwitted. They certainly proved his assertion when they treated him in the manner that they did.

Private advices received from a student at the university is to the effect that it was the custom to have several members of the freshman class every night. That at first the hazing was done to right some imagined wrong, and later it degenerated into a personal matter and that anybody who had offended any member of the hazing crowd was taken out and maltreated in order to even things up. He states, however, that since the Little case things have let up a little, and that there will probably be some peace for the freshman now until the present excitement blows over.

Death of an old Resident.
 Peter Grigwice, an inmate of the poor farm, died at that institution on Sunday, after a lengthy illness. He has been an inmate of that institution for several years. Mr. Grigwice formerly lived in this city, and at one time is reported to have been the owner of considerable property, which he eventually lost, however, and being unable to support himself, was taken to the poor farm.

Marshfield Water Case Settled.
 A telegram was received in this city on Tuesday stating that the supreme court had reversed the decision of the lower court in the case of County of Marshfield vs the City of Marshfield and that the sale of the Upham plant to the city stands. This was a case where the Upham company sold the water works and electric plant to the city. There were a number of the citizens who thought that the price asked for the plant had been excessive and started a suit to have the sale annulled. The lower court decided that the sale was illegal on account of the price but when it was taken to the supreme court that tribunal decided differently.

Baseball at Nekoosa.
 The Grand Rapids and Nekoosa baseball teams played the first game of the season last Sunday, the game being played at Nekoosa, and the score was 12 to 10 in favor of the Grand Rapids boys. The weather was rather cold for this sport and the concourse of spectators was rather small.

Grand Rapids was Second.
 In the high school league oratorical contest held at Necoosa last Friday evening Frank Odenick of Grand Rapids took first place and Anthony Niska of this city second, John Elias of Sparta was third.

May Ball.
 There will be a social ball at Powsley's hall at Biron on Friday evening, May 11th. Music will be furnished by Prof. Ocha's orchestra. The public is cordially invited.

New Company Organized.

A new company has been organized in this city within the past few days which will be known as the Keady Manufacturing company. Mr. G. J. Keady, after whom the company is named, is a resident of Oshkosh, but intends to remove to this city and assume the control of the new concern as soon as it is in operating condition.

The new company has in it a number of our local capitalists, and they have taken over the saw, door and blind factory near the Green Bay depot, and the owners thereof have become part owners in the new company, and their buildings will be used for the new manufacturing concern.

Mr. Keady was in the city the first part of the week at which time the final arrangements were made for the incorporation of the new company. The new concern will engage in the manufacture of bank, office and station fixtures, the same as the company was known as the Oshkosh Novelty company.

It is expected that the incorporation papers will be here by the latter part of the week, when the organization can be completed and others elected.

Mr. Keady states that the new concern will probably employ from twenty to twenty-five men, and that several families will remove here from Oshkosh.

Refused Money For School House.

One of the matters that was brought up before the last meeting of the county board was for the appropriation of $25,000 for the building of a county teachers training school in this city. The measure was defeated, or at least it was held over until the next meeting of the board, which will be next fall. During a conversation with a member of the board from out of the city, that gentleman stated that the members of the board generally felt that the appropriation asked for was excessive. It was his opinion that a building sufficiently large and elaborate to accommodate the training school could be built for $10,000, and that it was his opinion that had this amount been asked for it would have been granted with very few objections.

It had been explained to the board that the building was for the accommodation of the training school exclusively, and at the same time it was said that the attendance at this school would never be more than about fifty pupils, and that on this account it was not considered wise to spend the amount of money asked for. There is no doubt, however, that an appropriation will be made at some future time, as the training school has done a great deal for the betterment of the county schools, and there is no question but what the money spent in this manner is well invested.

The Roenius Coal Chute.

The following from the Inventive Age, pertains to the new Roenius coal and wood chute which is being manufactured by the Grand Rapids Foundry Co. in this city. There are also published herewith two cuts showing the design and workings of the new chute.

Edmund Roenius, Grand Rapids, Wis. Two patents--Both of these patents relate to chutes, arranged to be placed in walls, for conducting wood and coal into the cellars or vaults. The first covers a chute that consists of a metal tube, on the outer end of which is hinged a cover. A hook pivoted to the cover engages over one end of the tube to lock the cover in closed position, and a detachable cleaver for the inner end of the tube secures the hook in locked position.

The other patent covers a different type of structure. An annular casing is employed that is arranged to be set within a wall at an inclination, and has a hinged cover, which when open, constitutes an extension. The cover has side wings that swing inside of the chute, and the inner end of the casing is provided with pivoted doors that engage with the wings to lock the chute in closed condition.

Tax Matter Compromised.
 At the meeting of the county board it was decided by the members that it would be better for everybody to compromise the tax matter, than to have a lawsuit, in dispute, than to have a lawsuit, no matter which side won, it would all come out of the county. The cities had refused to pay their share of the bridge tax, and it was proposed to compromise the matter by paying the money out of the county treasury, so that the cities and villages pay a share of the amount after all. About 32 per cent. This was a very happy solution of a problem that might have caused considerable litigation and expense provided it had gone into the courts.

May Ball.
 There will be a social ball at Powsley's hall at Biron on Friday evening, May 11th. Music will be furnished by Prof. Ocha's orchestra. The public is cordially invited.

READY TO SPEND FORTUNE
TO CLEAR DAUGHTER'S NAME
Hartjes' Millions to Be of No Avail, Declares John F. Scott of Pittsburgh.

CASE PROMISES TO BE A REMARKABLE ONE
"For American Womanhood and American Homes I Will Fight," Declares the Father of the Woman Accused of Grave Misconduct.

Pittsburgh—For the sake of American womanhood, for the sake of American homes, for the salvation of his daughter's name, John F. Scott, as it is generally known, is engaged in a battle against the nation of Augustus Hartje, who is suing Mary Louise Hartje, daughter of Mr. Scott, for divorce and has named a negro as respondent. Hartje's attorneys say they will prove the relations of this beautiful society girl to the man who cleared out her stable and groomed her horses. On her part, Mrs. Hartje accuses her husband of brutality beyond the imagination of ordinary man.

It is such a case which promises to drag its length through the Pittsburgh courts within the next few months, and the amount of public sympathy which is being given to this woman, who is fighting a millionaire for her children and her name as a faithful wife and mother, is one of the most remarkable things about it all.

Hartje Not Popular.

Not one kind word has yet been spoken of Augustus Hartje since the case started. If he has any friends who believe his statement, they are keeping it to themselves. The negro who made the affidavit which was intended to strip from this woman the last shred of public sympathy and respect, surrendered to the officers of the law and confessed that he had produced himself, that his statements were false, that he had received about $750 for telling his story and was to have been paid $5,000.

Mixed up in this alleged conspiracy are a leading business man of the East, kind of Pittsburgh, one of the most prominent physicians of that fashionable section, and the Hartje brothers, Augustus and Edward G. H. brother, who is an attorney.

Not a Love Match.

The Hartje divorce case first broke out in the public October 19, 1905, when Hartje died suit against his wife for divorce, naming as co-respondent Thomas Madine, a young Irishman who had been employed by the rational law in the world today. If there is any man living who fills the shoes of Daniel Webster it is David Watson. He only deals with great things. He was attorney for the United States in the Alaska boundary dispute and with great ease against the greatest lawyers of Europe for the United States. He was attorney recently for the city of Chicago in the traction cases there which were won by the city. In the North Carolina Securities case his advice was invaluable. He has figured in a dozen celebrated cases, but the world does not hear much of him. Watson never gets interviewed. He is too busy. He is a planner and a doer, not a talker as you would want to have, but he has a power of notoriety. He does not like the look of his name in cold type.

His partner, John M. Freeman, is almost as well known as Mr. Watson and, in his way, is as good a lawyer. They read the counsel employed to look after Mrs. Hartje's interests.

man who will spend $1,500 or $2,000 for a fine horse and wonder at his wife's extravagance in spending $10 or $15. On anything that Augustus Hartje wanted he would spend any sum. He is that way in business. He is that way with his employees. He hires them for the least he can get them to work for, and works them to the limit.

Mrs. Hartje is a granddaughter of one John Scott, in his day one of the most famous railroad men this country ever produced. Andrew Carnegie is said to have gotten away from the big end of the Scott fortune, but the facts are that John Scott was a spendthrift and a man who led a life which was calculated to use up two or three fortunes. There was always tragedy in the family. It went down like the Pyrexian family in Hawthorne's "House of Seven Gables." Bankruptcy, violent death, insanity and other tragic happenings carried off different members of old John's own family and those of his connections. A fatality seemed to follow the name, and it appears as if that spell still exists, for this beautiful young woman, who has been the most terrible charges any man ever brought against a wife.

Good Woman and Mother.

She is a good woman. It is not intended to try her case here, but merely to paint her picture for the benefit of our readers. She has been as foolish, perhaps, as thousands of other women of wealth and fashion whose names have never felt the breath of scandal. As a housewife, she has been a failure. As a mother, she has been a success. She has been in the habit of indulging her children in the most extravagant and imprudent ways. She has been a failure in the home, but a success in the world. She has been a failure in the home, but a success in the world.

Hartje Has Able Lawyers.

John Marston, J. Scott Ferguson and William B. Rodgers are the attorneys for Hartje. Marston worked for Hartje for a few months in 1903. It was during this time he is alleged to have been intimate with Mrs. Hartje. He was discharged for drunkenness. In the summer of 1904, he was employed by a contractor driving a team attached to a dirt wagon. He was taken from this wagon and put in the store of the Farrar-Walsh company. He worked there for several months, during that time he is said to have related his story to Welshons.

Second Misfortune.

Mrs. Larabee, aged 58 years, of Flint, Mich., was knocked down and run over by a runaway horse last fall, sustaining a broken hip, was last week knocked to the sidewalk by being jostled roughly by a man who was pushing a milk cart, and on these two occasions she was injured. She is now in a hospital, and it is feared that she will not recover from the second shock.

Unsatisfactory in Hemlock.

Patriotic citizens of Merrill, Saginaw and Hemlock, about a year ago subscribed to a fund to erect a monument to the memory of the late John A. L. Carr, who was killed in the battle of Gettysburg. The monument, however, is now in a state of neglect, and it is feared that it will not be completed.

High between two civilized nations.

War between two civilized nations is high between two civilized nations. It is a tragedy that should not be repeated. We must learn to live in peace and harmony with our neighbors.

May, C. A. Vorn, United States Inspector and Inspector of the Michigan State Militia, has been ordered to report to the War Department to be relieved on account of his continued ill health. State militia officials express some doubt as to whether the militia will be able to provide for emergencies of regular army troops at which the National Guard will be instructed to be placed.

Heavy Rate of Taxes.

The tax committee of the council has notified the navigation companies whose headquarters are in Detroit that they must pay a rate of 400 per cent over what the assessment has been for the past 20 years. Officials of a passenger steamboat line say that if the rate is increased, they will be forced to leave the city.

City Marshal Moloney and Street.

John Moloney, city marshal, has been ordered to report to the War Department to be relieved on account of his continued ill health. State militia officials express some doubt as to whether the militia will be able to provide for emergencies of regular army troops at which the National Guard will be instructed to be placed.

According to the manner in which the books of the state of Michigan are kept, it is a question between the regents of the state university whether the auditor of the state has a right to pass upon the accounts of the university. An Old Man's Romance.

Some years ago Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Melburn, now residing in Grand Rapids, lived at Detroit, Mich., and among their friends they numbered an old, silver-haired man upon whom fortune had once smiled, but who in later life had been the victim of adversity. When near his end the Melburns took him into their home and for this act of kindness the old gentleman bequeathed to them a large sum of money.

Loss $50,000.

Originating from lightning, fire broke out in the plant of the Michigan Pipe Works, Inc., at midnight Saturday. The wind carried fire brands over a large area, in which were lumber and mills endangering several factories. The fire, however, confined the flames to the pipe company's plant. The loss was $50,000, with insurance of $10,000.

New Industry Started.

A turpentine company has bought a township in the Hammon branch of the Michigan Central in Rosemount county, and will erect a $100,000 plant for the manufacture of turpentine and alcohol from pine stumps to be secured from the property purchased. The company has 100 men clearing the land, and has set out 15,000 apple trees.

While there have been many changes in that part of the country during the past forty years, still it was possible for him to pick out the tree where he had stood, owing to the fact that it was near the road, and at that time was a good sized white oak tree.

FRISCO HAS CAPITAL IN SIGHT

Work of Clearing Up Burned Section

San Francisco.—An investigation made Wednesday demonstrated the fear that San Francisco will suffer a period of hard times as a result of the disastrous fire at the city's largest manufacturing plant.

Careful estimates made by authorities competent to speak show that within the next year there will be over $20,000,000 available for the rehabilitation of San Francisco.

The following figures make clear where this sum is to originate:

Investment in the city market—$1,000,000; Home Telephone company expenditures, $1,000,000; insurance losses now due payable (approximately), $175,000,000; United railroads new construction—$9,000,000; city bonds—$1,000,000; savings banks—$1,000,000; Oregon Shortland railway, approximately—$1,000,000; here, $1,000,000; restoration of Pacific States Telephone company, $1,000,000; restoration of government building—$750,000; rebuilding of sea wall, $2,000,000.

It is expected that a large part of this money will come from eastern and foreign capitalists. In figuring the two hundred and odd million which will be available, the investigators did not take into consideration the fact that the city had paid for the beautification and improvement of the city.

Silens of removal of industrial ruins were apparent in many parts of the burned district, and the work of clearing away debris preliminary to rebuilding was in progress in a score of places. It was said that plans for over 30 large buildings have been drawn, and will be submitted to the authorities after the new building laws are promulgated.

At present, the first definite proposition for furnishing money for a large scale to San Francisco for the purpose of rebuilding some of the burned sections was made public yesterday, when it was announced that the state of New York capitalists had agreed to advance $100,000,000. The news came in a telegram received from W. F. Herring, chief counsel of Southern Pacific, from United States Senator Newlands, of Nevada, who has large interests in the burned hotel.

Senator Newlands stated that he had submitted the plan to New York financiers and that they had tentatively consented to supply the money on a bond and mortgage basis.

A statement of the New York capitalists was given under discussion by the local finance committee.

The verdict was reached by the jury after a session lasting eight hours. The amount of money which Goll was alleged to have misappropriated was about $250,000. Mr. Goll was accused by the prosecutors of having conspired with his attorneys. He was sentenced to the custody of the United States marshal.

Attorney William B. Ruhl, for the defendant, at once made a motion for a new trial.

The trial of Henry G. Goll lasted exactly three weeks, during which time a great number of exhibits were submitted to the jury. "The most interesting part of the testimony was that offered by the former president of the bank, Frank C. Bigelow, who is now serving a ten years' sentence in the State Prison at Joliet, Ill., for having pleaded guilty to robbing the bank, without admitting it." Bigelow testified that many of the acts with which Goll was charged were committed under his direction, but stated that he had no knowledge of some of them. Advice from Bigelow, who has been bank official since leaving the bank, went from various points and testified as to various accounts with the Milwaukee bank. Several bookkeepers and tellers of the bank gave testimony on most of the charges, the basis for which having been furnished by the government's experts.

Goll was finally denied his freedom on a bond pending appeal before the United States District Judge Quarles on Saturday next.

PARIS STREETS SCENES OF TUMULT ON MAY DAY.

Architects and Revolutionists Take Advantage of Labor Agitation to Create Disorder in Capital.

Paris.—The long-expected May day did not bring the revolution which many revolutionary journals predicted, but brought scenes of extreme violence. The labor districts, which thousands of troops confronted with difficulty and in central portions of Paris have been on the appearance of a siege, the regiments of infantry and cavalry, and about the Arc de Triomphe, the bourse, the Bank of France and great railway station, while military sentries paced before banks and public establishments.

The main thoroughfares in the residential portion of Paris remain tranquil. In the West and, far removed in riotous scenes, people were directed to treat the events in the quarters as having no significance. However, much more than that, throughout the afternoon dragons, republican guards and cuirassiers, sweeping disorderly masses, sweeping Place de la Republique and the Boulevard de Magenta. Toward the middle of the evening, toward the districts, many persons were wounded on both sides. The manifestations were uncontrolled and threw up many barricades. Over 1,000 arrests were made during the day.

At no time did the demonstration show the magnitude of a revolt, but rather the maddest tumult, in which the serious labor element, struggling for a principle, was hopelessly confused with violent agitators, anarchists, revolutionists, ruffians and a great number of the curious. The workers never succeeded in forming a procession or even in assembling more than scattered bands. Their action was a reunion of several thousands in the labor exchange, at which a resolution was adopted not to return to work until the eight-hour day shall have been accorded.
